

LSUS seeks to grant grad degrees

LSUS has been authorized by LSU System President Martin D. Woodin to seek approval for granting master's degrees in business administration and education, according to Chancellor Donald E. Shipp.

Approval of the request would make LSUS a graduate-degree-granting institution, Dr. Shipp said.

LSU-Baton Rouge has offered graduate degrees in the two fields on the Shreveport campus since 1967. Since then, there have been 3,466 enrollments in the graduate education program with 221 students earning degrees, and more than 400 MBA enrollments with about 30 students graduating.

IF THE LSUS request is approved, the Baton Rouge program would be phased out locally. University officials hope to begin the new programs by next fall. Course fees would be the same as those for undergraduate students: from $50 to $140, depending on the number of hours scheduled.

University officials have been planning and preparing the graduate programs for the past two years. MBA students would be allowed to take from 33-57 hours for degree requirements. For M.Ed. candidates, the total requirements would be 30 hours.

Dr. Bobby E. Tabarlet, dean of the College of Education, issued the following statement: "LSUS is in the ideal position to provide graduate and in-service training for local teachers and administrative personnel. Our highly qualified faculty and excellent library facilities will make it possible for us to offer innovative and worthwhile course work for local education professionals. Our program will be one based upon solid subject-matter and professional course offerings taught by extraordinarily well-trained faculty members on a resident campus.

TODD Y. TILLMAN, acting dean of the College of Business Administration said, "The need for an MBA program in Shreveport is evidenced by the non-resident program that has been offered by LSU-Baton Rouge in this area since 1965. There are a number of business firms in this area who have middle management people that received their degrees in areas other than business."

As coordinator for the LSU-Baton Rouge graduate program in Shreveport, Dr. Vincent J. Marsala said, "I am most excited about the prospects of LSUS implementing its own program. There are many reasons why a graduate school in education and business is feasible and educationally sound: (1) The LSUS Library is suitable for graduate study; (2) a qualified faculty is already employed at LSUS; (3) many of the graduate courses leading to the master of education and master of business administration are already being offered as upper level courses at LSUS. As a result of these factors, the cost of implementing a graduate program is negligible," Dr. Marsala added.

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools has also commended LSUS for its decision to bring its undergraduate program to a reasonable stage of development before considering involvement in graduate education.

Student vote set next week

by GARRETT STEARNS
News Analysis

A student referendum on proposed amendments to the Student Government Association (SGA) Constitution on Feb. 16-19 was announced at Friday's SGA senate meeting.

Copies of the amendments are available for students in the lobbies of Bronson Hall, Science Building, Library Building and Snack Bar. Copies are also available in the SGA office, room 120, Bronson Hall.

MANY AMBIGUITIES; the lack of clear, definitive terminology; and mood or silent language in the present constitution were reasons given for the needed reforms. Furthermore, the reforms create constant conflict and confusion in interpretation among the SGA membership.

In the meeting Billy Lyons, SGA president, reported that the issue of the SGA proposed van purchase be dropped. Emphasizing that senators should continue to be thrifty, he recommended a "concentrated lobby effort in Baton Rouge to get back the Health and Physical Education Building" in this year's budget for LSUS.

LYONS ALSO informed senators that the Commencement and Convocations Committee expressed their appreciation for the set of standing flags recently donated by the SGA.

In other executive reports, Tim Hardy, SGA vice president, released figures on the SGA-sponsored Library Hours Survey taken during spring registration. "Results show conclusively that extended library hours are needed on weekends," Hardy said.

OUT OF 376 surveys responded to, 94 percent believed library hours should be extended; 90 per cent would like more hours on weekend for library services; 87 percent would use the library on Saturday if it was open; 73 percent would use the library on Sunday if it was open in the evening for research purposes; 87 percent use the library for research purposes; 82 percent go to other libraries when the LSUS Library is not available.

In other business the senate elected Gabe Sims to the Attendance Appeals Committee and authorized the purchase of a two foot by three foot blackboard and a roll of white tape to divide the board into sections.

SLTA plans three-day meet

by CARLA HARPER

"Good Teachers: Builders of Our Nation's Future" is the theme of the Student Louisiana Teachers' Association (SLTA) three-day program to be held Feb. 13, 14, and 15, according to LSUS student, Robert Banning, State president of the organization.

Registration begins today from noon to 5 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Bossier City. The Executive Council will meet at 4 p.m. at LSUS. The Youree Drive Junior High School Band will perform at the first general session address which begins at 7 p.m. tonight in the LSUS Science Lecture Auditorium.

JOHN SORENSEN, Deputy Chief of Staff, Aerospace Education and Cadet Program will speak on "Aerospace Education." He has previously served as Civil Air Patrol Regional Director of Aerospace Education, Pacific Region, and Director of Aerospace Education, National Headquarters, Civil Air Patrol. The day's events will end with a faculty-advisor reception at the Bossier City Holiday Inn beginning at 9 p.m.

Saturday's events will begin at 8 a.m. with a faculty-advisor breakfast to be held at the Holiday Inn in Bossier. The second general session, in which Dr. William Baker of the Louisiana Teachers' Association (LTA) is to speak on the "LEA-LTA Merger," will take place in the SLA starting at 9:30 a.m. Dr. John Mitchell, LTA president, is scheduled to attend.

The day's events will continue with a 12 noon complimentary luncheon in the LSUS Snack Bar. Starting at 12:15 p.m., the third general session resolutions workshop will begin in the College of Education. A social hour preceding the banquet at the Holiday Inn Bossier will start at 6.

DR. T. M. STINNETT, Distinguished Professor Emeritus of Texas A&M University will be the featured speaker at the banquet. Dr. Stinnett has published more than 500 articles and has authored 49 books, of which the last one has just been released. A dance at Shreveport's Fort Humbug following the banquet will climax Saturday's activities.

Sunday's events will begin and end with a general session including resolutions, old and new business, and elections to be held at 9:30 a.m. in the SLA.

Delta Sigs win yearbook contest

Delta Sigma Phi social fraternity has been announced the first place winner in the Bagatelle yearbook's Bicentennial picture contest, according to Marilyn Kolonko, Bagatelle editor. Second place winner was Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority, she said.

Both winners will have their group pictures in the front section of this year's annual and will receive a framed copy of the picture, she said.

The winners were picked by the Bagatelle staff. The criteria used to pick the winners included taking into account the type of costumes used, the background setting, overall colonial look and if the picture was taken by mid-January.

Valentine dance tomorrow night

The Entertainers will play at the Student Activities Board (SAB) campuswide Valentine's Day Dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. tomorrow night. The dance will be at Fort Humbug on the corner of Youree Drive and Stoner Avenue. Admission requires an LSUS ID plus $1, stag or drag. Ice chests and set-ups will be available, according to Preston Friedley, SAB president.

Area needs LSUS graduate school

Another great hurdle in the relatively short history of Louisiana State University in Shreveport is being embarked upon with the announcement that LSUS will seek approval for graduate programs in business administration and education.

As evidenced by LSU System President Martin Woodin's authorization this week, LSUS again is ready to meet the needs of Northwest Louisiana.

The need for these programs is clearly evident. Since the opening of LSUS in 1967, more than 3,800 students have utilized the LSU-Baton Rouge extension graduate programs in education and business administration. In addition, a total of 251 citizens have earned degrees. This semester almost 300 students are enrolled in the program with 20 courses being taught at LSUS.

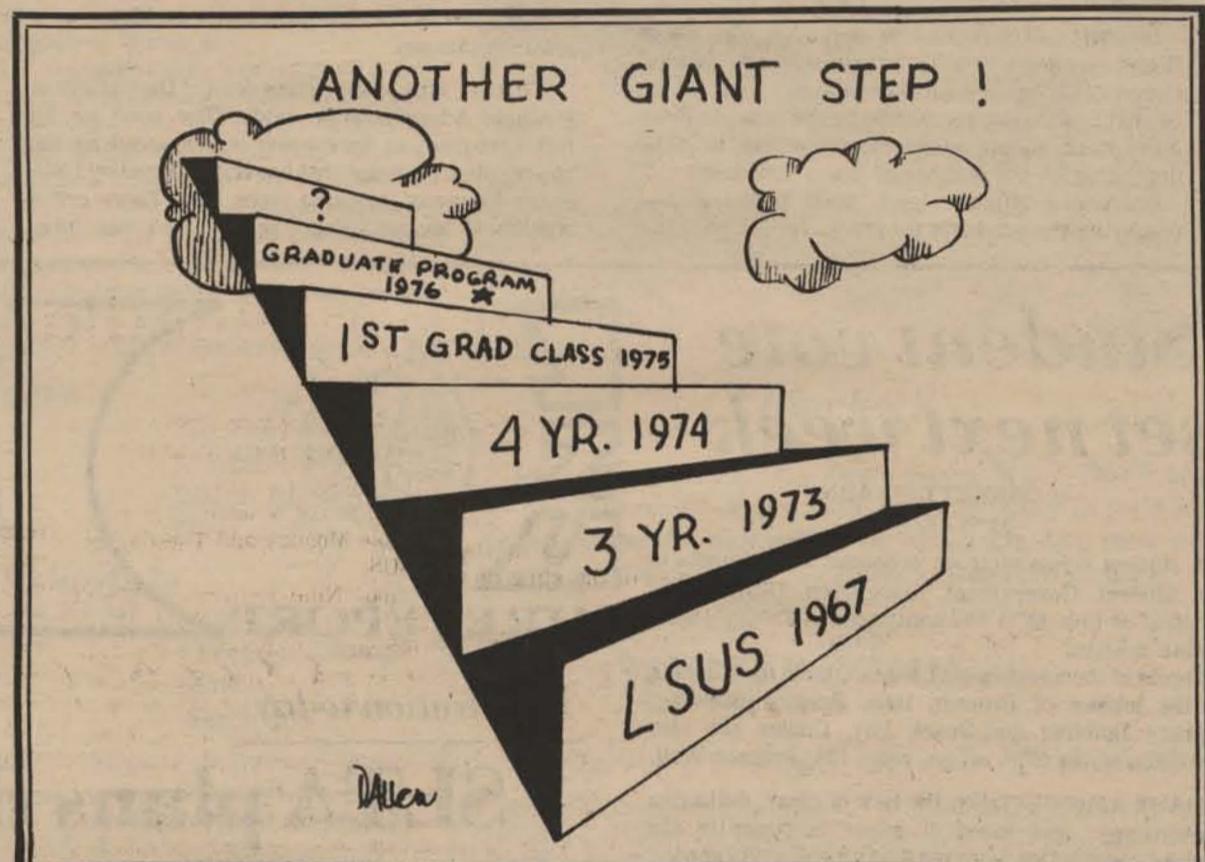

The need for graduate programs is evident on other grounds. Several in-state and out-of-state universities are offering off-campus graduate courses in Shreveport leading to master's degrees in these two fields. The visiting committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools last spring recommended that LSUS proceed with planning for limited graduate offerings. "The Shreveport metropolitan area is probably unique in the U.S. in that it has such a large urban population, is a federally recognized statistical area and commerce center, and yet is without a resident institution, public or private, that offers graduate degrees," the committee said.

The committee further stated, "The physical plant, the library holdings and the faculty are more than adequate to support these programs." Many of the junior-senior level courses presently offered in the various colleges will become the customary junior-senior and graduate level courses to serve the needs of the graduate students in these master's degree programs.

LSUS is serving a thriving metropolitan area, previously void of public higher education. As a result, LSUS is readily attended by students who prefer, or by necessity attend a residential college close to home or work. Therefore, LSUS should be assured of a bright future in obtaining graduate programs for this community.

Letter to the Editor

Dept. head clarifies psychology course here

To the Editor:

Comments in recent issues of the Almagest pertaining to Psychology 325, The Nature and Conditions of Human Sexual Response, may be misleading to some readers. These statements reflect the common curiosity about the course and, to some degree, the misunderstandings commonly reflected in inquiries about its content. It occurs to me that you would serve the campus well to clarify the picture if you would be so gracious as to publish this statement about the course.

The course is an elective in all curricula and is intended for upper-level students as is indicated by its being assigned a 300 number. Prerequisites are either Introduction to Psychology, Educational Psychology or permission of the professor. Students are encouraged to have completed their required Biological Sciences previous to taking the course. These requirements are intended to discourage the immature or the merely curious from registering. It is anticipated that students registering will enter the course with some awareness of Psychology as a science and with a sufficient degree of maturity to facilitate the objective examination of the research and theory related to the subject.

Psychology 325 deals with the basic anatomy and physiology of Human Sexual Response as well as cultural influences on its expression and the important emotional correlates associated with it. Human sexual response is studied in the context of personality dynamics and an attempt is made to relate it to love with special attention to characteristics of well-adjusted self-actualizing persons. The class is limited to forty students in each section and because of the serious attitude of the students it is possible to examine many controversial issues including contraception, abortion, sex and the law, and sex in the later years. The course is taught by a licensed Psychologist who is able to draw upon eight years experience in private practice in addition to his formal academic training.

The Department of Psychology has enjoyed the consistent support of the administration at every level and faculty and students have been joined by knowledgeable community leaders in supporting the effort. Responsible reporting in the Almagest relating to the course has been helpful as is exemplified in the February 6, 1976 article by Bess Maxwell. The ability of this University to offer the course is a tribute to the growing maturity of the University community and that of the community which the University serves.

George A. Kemp, Chairman
Psychology Department

More Iranian oil?

by Jack Anderson
with Joe Spear

The sales have fallen off because of conservation measures and mild weather.

However, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has always tried to appease the Shah. Kissinger wants to encourage American companies, therefore, to market more Iranian oil.

So the Shah is upset. He has brought quiet diplomatic pressure on the State Department to compel U.S. oil companies to market more Iranian oil. Otherwise, he has threatened to cut back his purchases of U.S. military equipment and nuclear reactors.

It is doubtful that the State Department can force the oil companies to produce more Iranian oil that they cannot sell.

working girl who was a bank receptionist only a few years ago. Then she married Ferdinand Marcos, and he became President of the Philippines.

Their sudden rise to riches, however, is not a story they want to advertise in the Philippines. They didn't want to censor Cosmopolitan magazine. That would only have attracted attention to the story and would have led to bad publicity.

So the Marcoses quietly arranged with their rich friends to buy up all the copies of Cosmopolitan as fast as they hit the Philippines newsstands. Thus, the magazine disappeared from the newsstands overnight -- before they could reach the people in the streets.

Superdome news can't be all bad

by RANDY GRIFFITH

Mayor Calhoun Allen last week called on the New Orleans news media to start "being fair" about printing some good news concerning the New Orleans Superdome.

Now, Mayor Allen is a member of the Superdome Commission and should know what he is talking about, however prejudiced it may sound. Indeed there have been a few, well, rather negative stories printed about the dome, such as a four million dollar deficit, ridiculously poor management, and so on.

MAYOR ALLEN, along with Gov. Edwards, says these stories are biased and do not show the many good things about the dome. The "good" stories, they say, are being buried in the back pages if printed at all.

Quite frankly, I was rather surprised to hear that there is any good news at all about the dome. But sure enough, after careful investigation, a special investigation has turned up several news stories of real, honest-to-gosh, good news stories about the beleaguered Superdome.

FOR ONE THING, it was found that, contrary to popular belief, most of the door knobs and handles in the dome are in working order. That is, you can get out of the building through a door using a knob or handle.

Also in a study, the results of which were never carried in the media, showed the chances were unbelievably small that an earthquake would hit the dome area during one of the programs and cause the dome to slide into the Mississippi River. The study found the same small chances for a glacier to ever crush the Superdome.

Commentary

AND FINALLY, another study found that there has not been one single death in the Superdome from the sting of a killer bee.

The solution to this problem could be rather difficult. However, if the Governor goes through with his threatened gag order on all state officials, the flow of stories containing bad news would surely decrease and eventually stop.

Which might be the best alternative? Just ask the Governor or Mayor, they'll tell you. There is so such thing as bad news; only "prejudiced stories."

SLA Indian festival fizzles out

by KAY OWENS
and GEORGE SYLVIE

The power of words was very visible Monday and Tuesday at LSUS.

Gour Nitai Festival, an East Indian musical festival, was supposed to take place Monday at 11 a.m. in the mall. Peter Kruger, spokesman for the performing group from Iscon Speakers Corporation, Tucson, Az., phoned Preston Friedley, SAB president, and said the group was delayed for unexplainable reasons. Kruger expressed hope to Friedley that the group would appear on campus Tuesday.

DR. SMITH then told the group that they could "play in the SLA or not at all." Dr. Smith reasoned, "The group was a religious sect instead of what was represented." He said basically that he would not want any other religious group to come on campus unless he knew their intentions first.

Despite the mix up, the group did perform Tuesday from 12:30 to 2. They left without trying to collect their fee, which would have been $75—provided they had given two performances.

FRIEDLEY said the group has not yet called to demand their money, which they would not get because there was no contract, no second performance, and the SAB was misled.

Misled was an understatement. Though the SAB was not at fault (prior talks with Kruger pointed to no complications), the festival was a misnomer.

According to a member of the group, "Gour Nitai" means

"Golden Eternal." To this date the SLA is still made out of bricks, wood and other materials which are not scheduled to last forever, though the legislature may think so. The only thing golden in the LSUS System is the jerseys of the football team—and even they have a little purple in them.

THE dictionary says that a festival is an occasion for feasting or celebration, recurring at regular intervals. One could hardly call one performance "recurring." As for being a festival, the only celebration going on was by the group of musicians, though some students were silently celebrating as they left the performance early.

The only music heard was the sound of hand-cymbals, religious chants and a lone bongo drum. In short—the Beatles they aren't.

And if those guys were East Indian, it was probably the Iroquois of up-state New York.

So the lesson to be learned by the incident is that words sometimes speak louder than actions, especially if they are unclear and ambiguous.

Library hotline

(Editor's note: Library Hot Line is a weekly question-and-answer column on inquiries submitted to the Reference Desk in the University Library. Students and faculty are invited to submit questions to the Library which would be of interest to Almagest readers.)

"I'M CURIOUS. WHAT ARE THOSE EMPTY SHELVES BY THE BROWSING SECTION FOR?"

Hopefully, by the time you read this in the paper, those shelves won't be empty! They are for the library's oversized books—books too tall or too wide to fit on regular library shelves. These books are marked with an "O" above the call number in the card catalog and on the spines of the books.

HOWEVER, the musicians arrived at 2 p.m. Monday but Friedley was unavailable—at the film festival in the Science Lecture Auditorium (SLA). Since it was too late to give an afternoon performance, Friedley said that the group was to come back the following day (Tuesday) at 11 p.m.

The group was late again, and did not get to LSUS until noon. It was at this time that Friedley, Dr. Jimmie Smith, vice chancellor for Student Affairs, and Joe Simon, director of student activities noticed that the musicians had arrived in a Greyhound charter bus—labeled "Hara Krsna."

Library shelves added

by GREG GOODWIN
Contributing Writer

The LSUS Library continues to grow with the addition of over $2000 in new shelving, according to Malcolm Parker, director of the library.

Thirty-seven sections of shelves have been added upstairs in the archives section to be used as storage and eight sections have been added downstairs to be used for oversized books.

IN ADDITION, the reference section has been expanded and new shelves have been added to the work area in the back.

Books that aren't used as often as others will be placed in the storage section upstairs.

"The books will still be available to those who need them," Parker said, "they will have to ask the librarians to get them."

OVERSIZED books, which in the past were scattered throughout the library, will now be placed in the oversized book section located on the north wall. These books will be designated with an "O" in the card catalogue.

Foundation awards grant to Oral History Program

by ROGER HERRING

LSUS Oral History Program has been awarded an $8,000 grant by the Shreveport-Bossier Foundation.

This second grant from the foundation is based on a proposal submitted by Hubert Humphreys, coordinator of archives and oral history at LSUS. It outlined in a three-year pilot program for the development of oral history.

First year funds have been used to help organize the project. Equipment has been purchased, student assistants employed and a number of important interviews are being conducted, Humphreys said.

Next fall History 490, Seminar in History, will be used to teach a course in the philosophy and method of oral history.

Gang squeaks by Pac

Sandy McIntyre

Greenway Gang narrowly won out over Mac's Pac, Ltd. 47-43 for their second victory of the season Monday night at the Ft. Humbug Confederate Memorial Gym.

The gang tied the score on a shot by Danny Webb late in the second half after trailing most of the game. Moments later, John Monsour sank a jumper to put Greenway in the lead for the final minutes of the game.

DURING GREENWAY'S come back, things went wild as Rob Norsworthy of Greenway Gang leaped on a Mac's Pac back in an attempt to block a pass.

After falling behind, Mac's Pac, Ltd. appeared to panic a little as they threw a couple of wild passes out-of-bounds. They also attempted to use a full court press which failed. The loss puts Mac's Pac, Ltd. at 0-3 for the season.

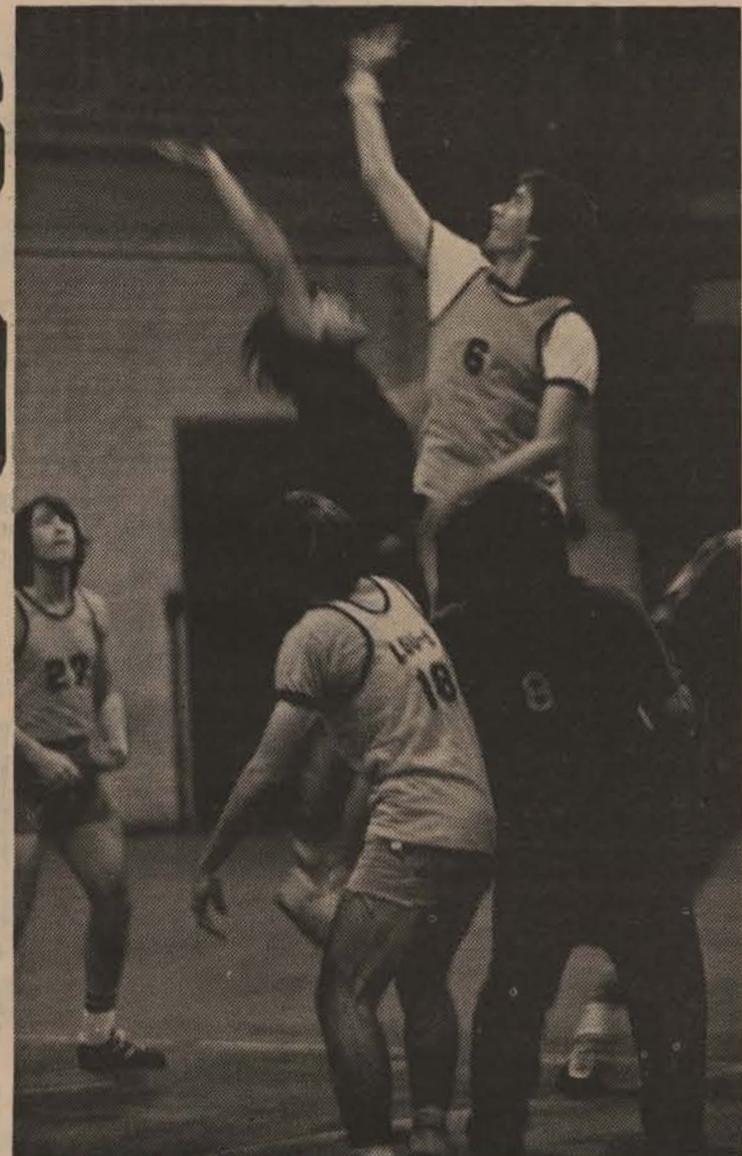

Scoring high for Greenway Gang was David Hunsicker with 11 followed by Danny Webb scoring 10. For Mac's Pac, Ltd., Robert Daniel was high scorer with 8 followed by Jimmy Collinsworth, David Doughty and David McCallister all scoring 6 each.
